Spring Garden Tip

Start out with cool season Annuals

Annual flowers fall into two categories: varieties that like it warm and varieties that like it cool. Most cool season annuals, like pansies, poppy and snapdragons can take a little frost. Plant them in beds with borders, boxes or containers to gain a few early weeks of color. Most cool season annuals fade when summer heat arrives. Replace them with heat loving varieties such as petunia, pentas, and lantanas for color all summer long.
